Unintentional Humor: Celebrating the Literal Mind

By Brent Anderson and Linda Gund Anderson

Gund Publishing, 2011. Spiralbound. Book Condition: New. The easy-to-use spiral-bound edition. "I've got a frog in my throat", "She's under the weather" and "A school of fish" are examples of the hilarious stories and cartoons in Unintentional Humor: Celebrating the Literal Mind of Autism. Written by a young man with autism and his mother, this book will help you realize the communication challenges for people on the autism spectrum. It will enlighten people to their literal minds, and be entertaining at the same time. The definitions in the back of the book are helpful for families, teachers, and everyone involved with autism spectrum disorders. Unintentional Humor: Celebrating the Literal Mind is a compilation of stories and cartoons depicting the literal way that many on the autism spectrum interpret figurative language. The book has an easy-to-read-format that is filled with hilarious stories and cartoons. Unintentional humor appeals to people of all ages and genders, making you laugh at some of our most common expressions. The stories will bring an increased awareness and improve communication for all of those living and loving someone on the autism spectrum. Brent Anderson is the inspiration for the book. Although not diagnosed with autism until...
