Excerpt: .but with an expression which made her yet more like the . Lady of the Lea, for it spoke of a haughtiness which nothing could subdue--a determination which nothing could surmount. Presently the sleeper stirred, and threw one fair, white arm over her head; and then, opening her large, dark eyes, she sprung up and exclaimed, with a thrill of joy in her voice: My darling! my Gracie! I am so glad. Hush! sweet mother; do not rouse yourself. I am coming to lie down beside you until four o'clock. Dolly will come then; and oh! my precious! she continued, taking the beautiful head, and folding it to her bosom as a mother would cherish a child, you must go then, or at dusk to-morrow--for he has come back. A look of dread and horror crossed the mother's face, and she said:...
