Excerpt: .of the baccalaureate, there were antecedent conditions, --to be twenty-one years of age, unmarried, to have passed the diterminance, either at Paris or some university which possessed a determinate number of regents, etc. There was some wisdom in these precautions taken by the Middle Ages in order to prove that the aspirants 1,1 The mastership, says Thurot, was to the licentiateship what the wedding party is to the nuptial benediction; a ceremony celebrated in honor, and on occasion of, the Sacrament that has just been received. for degrees had pursued a regular course of studies; but the rules too often remained a dead letter. The examination itself took place in the presence of the chancellor, assisted by various examiners chosen by him.1 It was not public, but what was then called an examination in cameris. Nevertheless, at certain periods, the candidate was obliged to...
