Making Peace with Spain: The Diary of Whitelaw Reid, September-December, 1898 (Paperback)

By Whitelaw Reid

University of Texas Press, United States, 2014. Paperback. Book Condition: New. 229 x 152 mm. Language: English . Brand New Book  Print on Demand .Whitelaw Reid, according to H. Wayne Morgan, was a leading newspaperman, more than an occasional diplomat, a power in his party's politics, a supporter of some of the best in his era's culture. Of all his legacy, perhaps the record he left of his part in the Peace of Paris is the most significant and most interesting. It not only reveals the workings of his mind and of the peace conference, but also suggests the complex currents that carried his country into the realities of world power in the twentieth century. In editing Reid's diary, Morgan used much material pertinent to the Paris Peace Conference of 1898, employed here for the first time. This material is a rich assortment of archival matter: the Reid Papers, the John Hay Papers, the John Bassett Moore Papers, and the McKinley Papers, in the Library of Congress; the Peace Commission records, in the National Archives; and unpublished materials in the Central Files of the Department of State. Whitelaw Reid, as a war correspondent during the Civil...
