Not illustrated. 1921 Excerpt: .The glycerine to be used for nitroglycerine and dynamite is subjected to the following tests: the water is calculated from the loss in weight of 20 grams heated for ten hours at 100 and for a few hours at a slightly higher temperature. Five grams, after being heated in a platinum dish at 180 until no further evolution of vapour takes place, is weighed, and should then undergo no further diminution in weight when again heated for a short time; it is then ashed in the usual way and the ash tested for metals and salts. Glycerine for nitroglycerine should have been distilled at least once, should not contain sugar or fatty acids, should have a neutral reaction and should contain no lead, calcium, or other metals or foreign metalloids; only traces of Cl, As, and Fe are allowed: the specific gravity should exceed 1.26 at 15. The purest glycerine (puriss). does not contain more than 0.03 per cent, of ash and not more than 0.2 per cent, of extraneous organic substances which do not evaporate at 175, and for dynamite these two should not exceed 0.25 per cent, Oxalic acid is detected by neutralising with ammonia, acidifying with acetic acid and precipitating with CaCl₂. The glycerine content is determined from the density candle or soap-works; the saponification glycerine from candle-making is the better (since fats of higher quality are used for candles) and, although it is darker, it is more easily decolorised than that from soap lye....
