Excerpt: . . . arising with so close connection with all the world, best be met The answer is, and it will be accepted by all when they know the facts, we must do as all the word has done--make Industrial Art Education general. There is hardly a single country in Europe that does not make the most liberal provisions for the education of its people in such things, and they acknowledge that it is the secret of wealth. Mainly through our public schools, by the study of some broad system of Industrial Drawing, by means of Free Evening Art Schools, for mechanics and artisans, will the United States take its proper position and maintain its prosperity. Our general government, not having direct control in the States, cannot provide for these things, as is done abroad, so it rests upon the several States to come forward, especially those like Ohio that are destined to be great manufacturing districts of the future. It is to be hoped that the matter will be agitated at the State Teachers Association, this year, and presented by a committee to the next Legislature. It has travelled from Massachusetts through New York and Pennsylvania, each State having made more or less ample provisions, and it would be a shame for the chain to be broken with us and be resumed by some less favored and more Western State. Supt. of Drawing, Columbus, O. W. S. Goodnough. THE NORMAL METHOD OF TEACHING SPELLING. Continued from March...
